

HUMAN HEALTH IN THE DIGITAL AGE

HOW THE INTERNET IS EMPOWERING US TO BE HEALTHIER

Article by Paolo Manfrini

READING TIME: 3 MINUTES

Tuesday, January 25, 2022

SHAREABLE LINK: <https://www.pemf8000pro.com/20220125-human-health>

Today, almost everybody has access to a vast repository of human knowledge, available free of charge or at a low cost. This is enabling curious minds to access vital information, often directly from the source, bypassing the traditional curators. Some of the greatest areas of interest are the fields of health, wellness, nutrition, preventive medicine, and technological breakthroughs. An ever-growing number of individuals are now coming to understand the importance of becoming informed about their own health, and realizing the power this knowledge can have in improving their well-being and prolonging their lives.

While we all still rely primarily on doctors when it comes to our health, the average patient today is better informed than ever before, making it easier for healthcare providers to communicate with us and making it easier for the patient to ask the right questions. This translates into a more effective implementation of treatments and lifestyle modifications. The informed patient today has a better understanding of blood test markers in comprehensive metabolic panels or CMPs, a better understanding of proper nutrition, and a wider awareness of the treatments and technologies available besides the traditional pharmacological approach.

Among relatively new technologies, Pulsed Electro-Magnetic Field therapy or PEMF has been gaining popularity thanks to its effectiveness. This type of therapy is applied in a painless and non-invasive manner, and the equipment required costs much less than other technologies designed to achieve similar results. This puts PEMF within the reach of not just medical facilities and chiropractic offices, but even patients who desire to have this technology in their own home.

Safe, easy to operate, and amazingly effective, these devices are used to treat a long list of ailments and conditions such as chronic pain, bone fractures, muscle injuries, circulatory problems, inflammation, digestive dysfunction, arthritis, auto-immune disease, and more.

The ever-growing adoption of PEMF therapy among chiropractors, sports medicine professionals, physical rehabilitation facilities, and many top professional athletes is not the result of any massive marketing campaign or cultural trend. It is the inevitable organic growth fueled solely by the great effectiveness of this therapy and the spectacular results it provides. Post-operative convalescence and injury recovery times are routinely cut in half. Pain medication is reduced or entirely eliminated. Incidence of infectious disease is greatly reduced by naturally optimizing the immune system. PEMF therapy brings balance back into the various biological systems, giving the human body the power to heal itself.

These achievements are not just empirical or anecdotal. A growing body of scientific literature documents the effectiveness of PEMF therapy, which is the focus of hundreds of randomized controlled trials conducted by world-leading researchers and scientists across the globe.

The implication of this overwhelming evidence is huge. We are witnessing the dawn of a new age of health and wellness. As this technology becomes more and more available to the masses, its impact becomes harder to ignore. You can be the beneficiary of this revolutionary breakthrough, taking ownership of your health and dramatically changing your life for the better. Learn more at PEMF8000Pro.com.

Paolo Manfrini is the Senior Science Advisor at PEMF Wellness Technology, LLC

He can be contacted at research@pemf8000pro.com

For information on the latest PEMF devices visit PEMF8000Pro.com